COMPLETED FEDERAL AID HIGHWAYS IN CALIFORNIA TOTAL 681 MILES

Federal aid funds to the extent of $7,680,000 had been allotted to Federal aid highway projects in California which had been completed at the close of the* past fiscal year, according to figures made public today in the annual report of the Chief of the Bureau of Public Roads.

In an analysis of the report made by A. E. Loder, manager of the good roads bureau of the California State Automobile Association, it was pointed out that 236 miles of federal aid highway were completed in California during the fiscal year which ended June 30. These projects were completed at a total of almost six million dollars and $2,961,000 of Federal aid funds were allotted to them during the year. California ranked sixth among the states of the Union in amount of Federal aid funds expended during the past fiscal year.

At the end of the period covered in the report of the Bureau of Public Roads, Loder said that a total of 681 miles of Federal aid highway had been completed in California. Besides the $7,680,000 allotted to these projects by the Federal government, the State has expended almost ten million dollars on them, bringing the total cost of Federal aid highways completed on California up to $17,129,800.

ENGLAND BUILDS SALT WATER HYDRO-ELECTRIC PLANT

The first hydro-electric generating plant actuated by the rise and fall of the ocean's tide is now being built at West Mersea in Essex, England, and will shortly be put into commission. A huge tidal basin fills at high tide and drives the turbines of the plant as the sea water flows out during low tide. In addition there is second basin located higher up than the high-tide basin which drives the turbines of the generating plant during high tide. In this way there is a continuous production of electricity. The first generating unit of the West Mersea plant will, when put in place, produce 4,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy annually.

GREAT STATESMAN PASSES

Mourning the death of Congressman Julius Kahn and lauding the work he has done in Congress for many years in support of national defense, Major General Charles G. Morton today made the following statement:

"By the death of Congressman Kahn the nation at large and the Pacific Coast especially loses one of its greatest statesmen. Congressman Kahn has always been an ardent and powerful supporter of adequate national defense and of other measures for national welfare. He was always very closely interested in military affairs in general and especially those pertaining to the defense of the Pacific Coast. Mr. Kahn was held in high esteem by the Army and we mourn his death as the loss of one of our dearest friends, and I, in addition, feel that I have suffered the personal loss of an intimate and loyal friend."

SINCE 1917 the horse population of New York City has decreased from 108,036 to 50,053 in 1924 which is a decline of 57 per cent. On the other hand electric trucks in New York City have increased from 1,958 in 1913 to 4,675 in 1924. This is an increase of 139 per cent. and the larger part of this gain in the use of electric trucks has been made in the last three years.

THE SPANISH NORTHERN RAILWAY, with a line running from Gijon to the Bay of Biscay across the Pyrenees Mountains into France, is electrifying 38.6 miles of the most mountainous part of this line as the first step in an extensive electrification program. For this project twelve electric locomotives have been purchased from American manufacturers, as well as substations for reducing the voltage of the electricity obtained from Spanish hydro-electric generating stations.

SERIOUS AND WILFUL MISCONDUCT DEFINED

Every employer and every employee in California should read carefully two articles that appear in the December issue of the California Safety News, published quarterly by the Industrial Accident Commission. "The Law of Safety in California" by Warren H. Pillsbury, attorney for the commission, defines what constitutes "serious and wilful misconduct" and points the way by which employers may avoid paying fifty per cent additional compensation (against which they cannot insure) and by which employees may avoid the loss of fifty per cent of their compensation. In one day recently the Commission issued awards against three employers in "serious and wilful misconduct" cases, so that Mr. Pillsbury's article appears to be most timely. Commissioner John W. Carrigan's article, "A Heart-to-Heart Talk About Compensation in California" will be of special interest to workmen as it tells, in plain, narrative form, just what to do in the event of injury and in order to secure the benefits of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Many other articles, contributed by the engineers of the commission, will also be of interest to both employer and employee. Copies of the magazine will be sent free upon request to the Industrial Accident Commission at Sacramento.

CHANGE YOUR NAME

and CHANGE YOUR LIFE

NEVSA
McMEIN

CHANGE your name and change the course of your life, is the advice given by Nevsa McMein, the well known young artist. To change one's life for the better, however, one must choose a name according to numerology. That's what Miss McMein did. In numerology one belongs either to the Air, the Fire, or the Water Concord, depending on the date of one's birth. Each concord is represented by certain "key numbers." To be successful the numbers corresponding to the letters in one's name should be reducible by addition to any of one's key numbers. In an article appearing in the January issue of Cosmopolitan Miss McMein tells of her own adventure in naming herself and gives the table of numerals and corresponding letters, explaining the method of acquiring a numerological name, one that in the strictest numerological sense "belongs."

Fuchsia Velvet Evening Gown Worn With Shaded Rose On Shoulder and Pink Pearls.

"GERANIUM pink may change a girl's career," observed Margaret Story in her recently published volume, "How to Dress Well." "Amor pink," she says, "represents youth and daintiness. It is the true color of love. The touch of red spirit and vitality, and its whiteness gives innocence and youth." Says she of red: "It may create an enjoyment of life in the hereafter."

If this be the case it seems as if no girl ought quite to despair of finding the joy of life until she has worn a red gown.

Further in her interesting book, Mrs. Story says: "Purple, when predominates, is imperious; it will say, 'Go.' If there is more red than there will be warmth, generosity and responsiveness, which indicate cordiality."

Fuchsia, the shade that is now frequently chosen by fashionable women when they want to wear a frock of the reddish color, might be described as a purple with a purplish cast. To many persons it is not especially becoming, but always it is a stimulating, arresting color to behold. Interestingly enough colors that bear the cachet of real smartness in this generation very seldom are very becoming. Mustard color that ruled fashion quite a number of years ago was really becoming to about one woman in a thousand; jade green is seldom so becoming as sage or a deep leaf green, periwinkle or pervenche blue is less becoming than sky blue or madonn blue. Yet mustard, jade and periwinkle have been "smart."

Fuchsia appears to best advantage when, somehow or other, it is worked into what Margaret Story would call a "self-harmony." As example of this, she gives us red, light red and dark red. Thus a fuchsia velvet gown is worn with a rose on the shoulder shading from deep fuchsia to pink, and the neck-lace worn with the gown consists of a string of pink pearls. The writer just quoted bids us remember that in such schemes, "the color of the wearer is considered as one of the colors of the scheme."

Such being the case the woman who wants to wear fuchsia and pink as part of such a "degrade" scheme—for the French word "degrade" seems to signify no more nor less than a "self-harmony" should take care that her choice and tips present the color of the same range. To use the transferred fuchsia considered smart by some women a few seasons ago would be a mistake. To keep the harmony perfect there should be little or no suggestion of yellow in the cheeks or lips, and the flesh-colored stockings should be a clear, not salmon, pink.

George Ade Takes a Fall Out of "Jazzmania"

The Great God Pan—1924 Version

"JAZZ has brought epileptic convulsions within the reach of all," says George Ade in an article which he heads "Jazzmania," and which appears in the January issue of Cosmopolitan. This democratic aspect is about the only virtue which Mr. Ade attributes to that form of music which he dubs "the companion of bootleggers and the pet of excitable school girls."

"Jazz," he says, "came slinking out of the underworld" and now it has leaped itself into "the living rooms of the socially important and into our most perfumed food-palaces." It also has its place in perfectly respectable homes "where the children are starving and the radio is working great."

Mr. Ade laments that jazz has choiced the attacks of ministers and up lift clubs and irate opera subscribers, and he suggests that even though it constitutes 75 per cent of modern existence, we might pause and remember that we have other duties to perform even though obliged to get up in the daytime to perform them.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

MAKE A CHRISTMAS BAG

DON'T you know somebody who would like a Christmas bag for a gift?

These bags are such fun to make; that you may be able to think of several people who would like them, once you have made one.

To begin with make a bag of some attractive material, so that the bag may later be used for a twine bag, a work bag or a receptacle for some other definite thing.

Then fill it. What with? That depends. If you are making it for a man, you might fill it with all sorts of smoking accessories—pipe cleaners, tobacco, an ash tray for the arm of a chair and a nest of trays for card tables.

If you are making it for a girl living alone, you might fill it with all sorts of goodies—candy and salted nuts, a little parcel of cookies, some small jars of jam and jelly.

If it is for a child, you might fill it with ten-cent toys, each one wrapped separately and attractively. For an invalid you can make such a bag and fill it with ten or a dozen gifts, one to be pulled forth at every hour on Christmas day. These may be tiny things that cost only ten or fifteen cents each, or they may be of greater value, and may then be contributed by various members of the family who wish to gift the recipient in question.

The same idea may be carried out in a children's gift bag for Christmas. If you are making it for a girl living alone, you might fill it with all sorts of goodies—candy and salted nuts, a little parcel of cookies, some small jars of jam and jelly.

WHERE IT STARTED

THE BUGGY

The name buggy, applied to a small vehicle without a top, drawn by one horse, is of Hindu origin. The Hindu name for such a carriage (usually drawn by an ox in that country) is "bachi"; shortly after the British occupation of India, the officers adopted the name altered in pronunciation to "buggy," to their light traps. From here the name spread to the continent and to America.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE
AUTHOR OF "Luxury of Love," "The Husband Baiter," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA and JIM LELAND set the house after their honeymoon, to find that Jim's mother intends to monopolize him as she always has. Cynthia cannot accustom herself to this, or to her mother-in-law's determination to remodel her. Jim leaves town on business, and Cynthia and Madame Leland quarrel. Cynthia makes the acquaintance of NOEL GARDNER, the black sheep of the town, recently returned from Paris, where his wife has divorced him. She also meets

CECILE MALCOLM, a gay young widow who has designs on Gardner.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XXIII—A GAY HOUSE WARMING

THE impromptu tea party at Cynthia's that afternoon developed into a hilarious affair with Noel's arrival. Helene Jordan telephoned for her husband, who arrived, bringing his business partner, while Noel was making the coffee. Cecile put a record on the phonograph, and began to dance with Gregory Jordan at once. Helene promptly appropriate Helene.

VIOLET DARE

Cynthia, joining Noel in the butler's pantry, began to try to explain matters.

"I didn't want Cecile to phone you; she did it before I could stop her," she told him. "I wouldn't have done it for anything."

"My dear, don't you suppose I know that you wouldn't dream of asking for the key to my liquor closet?" he asked. "And don't you suppose that I know Cecile and her ways thoroughly? Don't let this thing worry you. As a matter of fact, I was going to suggest that you leave whatever you found here that you wanted. And, incidentally, do you mind if I leave my private stock here? The laws here in town are being enforced so strictly just now that I don't dare try to move any of the stuff to the club."

"Keep it here by all means," she urged. "I'm so glad that you understand about Cecile's phoning you; it really worried me."

"Don't ever let anything Cecile does do that, or you'll never have a peaceful moment," he advised her. "And don't ever worry about what I may think, either. Won't you accept me as a friend, Cynthia, and trust me to know the truth about you, or at least not to jump at a misunderstanding?"

"Why, yes—yes, of course," she stammered, embarrassed by the ardor in his eyes.

She was glad to go back to the living room before he could say anything more. Cecile was sitting on the arm of Jordan's chair, one hand on his shoulder. Helene was still dancing with her husband's partner, her head almost on his shoulder. Someone had upset an ash tray. Cynthia glanced apprehensively at Noel, but he laughed and shrugged his shoulders.

"Don't mind little things like that," he told her, as she picked up the ash tray. "This apartment needs to be lived in, and ashes on the rugs won't hurt it any."

But Cynthia did mind. She was glad when the noisy crew departed at six o'clock.

"I suppose Noel's going to stay—to lock the liquor closet," remarked Helene Jordan, significantly, as she snatched the door.

"No, indeed, he isn't; he's going back to his office and finish the work you so rudely interrupted," Noel replied.

"Want me to help you?" asked Cecile, slipping one arm through his. "I'll sit beside your desk and encourage you. No? Well, then, why not come to dinner with me when you do get through? Come on Noel!" He shook his head.

"Can't manage it. I'll be busy till late tonight. Sorry," he told her.

When they had gone Cynthia straightened the living room, and then sat down to eat dinner alone. She had not cared for the brand of movement so enjoyed by Cecile and Helene, but at least it was better than utter solitude and thoughts of an indifferent husband, she told herself. She began to wish that someone—anyone, even Louella—had asked her to dine with them that evening.

She was just trying to eat her salad when the phone rang, and Noel Gardner's voice came over the wire.

"Won't you dine with me?" he asked. "I can't seem to get up any enthusiasm over eating alone, and I found that there wasn't so much work to do at the office after all."

Cynthia smiled. She had suspected that he wasn't telling the truth when he protested to Cecile that he would be busy till late that evening. "You ought to see me this evening, so that I can transfer that stock of your mother-in-law's to you," he went on. "It's really important."

Noel Gardner's voice came over the wire.

"Then why not dine here with me?" she asked. His acceptance was so eager that she wondered if she had done wisely; after all, their business should be transacted at his office, and Jim and his mother and sister would certainly have disapproved of her asking Noel Gardner to the house.

"Oh, well, Frances can chaperone us," she told herself as she ran out to the kitchen to ask the maid to heat the fowl that had been sent out a moment before, untouched. "Company for dinner?" Frances asked in surprise. "Oh, Mr. Gardner?" Her tone spoke volumes, but far from disapproving, she quite plainly was delighted. "Shall I heat the soup, too? He'll be hungry."

Cynthia nodded and hurried to her room to rearrange her hair. She felt like a lonely outcast that has been asked to a party quite unexpectedly.

Christmas Bill At The California

The first of the big Christmas week bills comes to the California Theatre today, with Walter Weems, the world's renowned character comedian, heading the five act bill of footlight favorites and Richard Dix, the screen's newest star, as the featured player in the screen feature "A Man Must Live."

Every effort has been made to make the day's program over shadow any previous Christmas bill offered in Richmond.

Walter Weems, direct from a sensational tour of Australia, and for a number of years a star over the best vaudeville circuits of America, will present in his own inimitable way his original offering entitled "Optimistic Pessimism." You will say that Walter is one of the best monologists and character comedians to ever play in Richmond.

Worldly and Peters present an act called "Circus Days." Mr. Wordley is the country boy and Miss Peters is the circus performer. Their talk is of the wise cracking variety and is guaranteed to register one laugh after another. Mr. Wordley does a comedy song and dance that never fails to bring forth laughs and applause. Their act is one big laugh from start to finish. As an amusing number, it has any comedy act beaten a city block, so don't miss it.

The "Novel-Esk Trio," consisting of two very snappy pretty girls and young man, present comedy singing and dancing. The dancing includes soft shoe, waltz, tango and buck. The singing includes harmony "Blues" and ballads. If you are looking for "something out of the ordinary" you will find in this little review.

Miss Marie Rossi a pretty singer and a talented artiste will be a pleasant surprise to the music lovers. Miss Rossi has an exceptionally sweet voice and offers a splendid repertoire of popular song numbers.

The Arnesons, sensational novelty equilibrists, have been featured with the biggest circuses in the world, have played all the leading theatres in America and can be relied upon to give a thrill to any audience. Their work is away from the usual routine and all original. Perfection in artistic presentation and remarkable ability are the outstanding features of the offering presented by this clever trio.

Richard Dix, the screen's newest star, will be seen in his newest picture "A Man Must Live," based on "Jungle Law" by I. A. R. Wylie.

Other features on the same program include "Hearts of Passes" a roaring comedy; "Kinograms" Carl Richard's California Orchestra, Larry F. Canelo, at the huge organ.

Big Program at Macdonald Today

If you miss the show at the Macdonald today, you will pass up one of the best all round bills of the season, according to the boys who are presiding over the destinies of the popular photoplay house at Eleventh and Macdonald.

Today's card, it is announced, is made up of five different subjects, each one a little feature in itself. Every one of these subjects has plenty of action and comedy, so taking it from start to finish, the show should be one continual round of exceptional entertainment.

The "big picture" is called "The Bandit Tamer," and the stars include Franklyn Farnum, Marguerite Clayton, the vaudeville team of Crimmins and Gore, and Max Asher, famous blackface comedian. If you like your westerns served up fast and roaring with some fine comedy thrown in on the side, then "The Bandit Tamer" will provide just what you are looking for.

The other subjects in this film variety show are an Aesop's Fable, "In the Good Old Summer Time," Albertini, famous European daredevil in another chapter of "The Iron Man," comedy, "Eat and Run," and Billy Sullivan, the galloping cowboy, in "The Double X." Some show, brother, some show.

Monday's attraction is a big film version of David Belasco's celebrated stage success, "The Governor's Lady." "Eagle's Feather" will be Tuesday's main drawing card and on Wednesday and Thursday, will come the great holiday attraction, "The Fighting American."

Sunday at the Churches

WESLEY METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Corner Ninth and Nevins. C. G. Lindemann, minister.

The Sunday school meets every Sunday morning 9:45. There are classes for every member of the family.

At 11 o'clock the pastor will deliver a Christmas sermon on the theme, "A Christmas Without Christmas." Christmas hymns will be used throughout the service, and there will be special music.

The Epworth League meets at 6:30 o'clock in the social rooms of the church. All young people are welcome.

At 7:30 o'clock there will be a song service at which the well-known Christmas carols will be used. There will also be special vocal numbers and J. E. Hill will play a trombone solo. During the prayer hymn the cross will be illuminated. The pastor will speak on the subject, "The Greatest Thing in the World." What do you think it is? You may not agree with the pastor but he would like to have you hear what he has to say on the subject.

The Sunday school scholars will have their annual program and Christmas tree Tuesday night, December 23, at 7:30 o'clock. Besides the program there will be the illuminated Christmas tree, a visit from Santa Claus, and the distribution of candy to the children. At this service gifts of groceries, clothing toys, and money will be received for the Fred Finch home in Oakland. A committee will receive the gifts.

Wednesday evening there will be a Christmas prayer meeting beginning at 7:30 and lasting for just one hour. This will give plenty of time to enjoy Christmas eve in the family home.

Friday evening for the Family Night program we have secured the picture, "The Ninety and Nine." This comes highly recommended. There will be a "peppy" sing preceding the picture.

On Sunday evening, December 28, at 7:30 o'clock we will have our annual cantata. The title of this cantata is "The Dawn of Christmas." The choir has been doing faithful work in preparation which means an exceptional rendition of this cantata. There will also be an illustrated Christmas song and the projection on the screen by the use of the stereopticon of some of the world's famous masterpieces by noted artists. The subject of these pictures being the scenes portrayed by the Christmas story. You will enjoy every minute of this program.

Wishing you all a "Merry Christmas," we extend you a cordial invitation to worship with us.

IT'S so easy to get off on the wrong foot with people—whether it be in an important business contact or simply in a casual social meeting.

It pays in life to be able to make people like you. And so often it is some seemingly very little thing that may hold you back.

For example, quite unconsciously you watch a person's teeth when he or she is in conversation with you. If they are unclean, improperly kept, and if you are a fastidious person, you will automatically hold this against them. And all the while this same analysis is being made of you.

Listen! Teeth Paste cleans teeth a new way. At last our chemists have discovered a polishing ingredient that really cleans without scratching the enamel—a difficult problem finally solved.

Highway Industry Becomes One Of The Billion Dollar Interests

Two Phases of Highway Maintenance.

Although it will be some months before accurate figures are obtainable which will show the vast sums spent for highway construction in the United States during 1924, authoritative estimates place the total fully twenty per cent in excess of the 1923 figure, which was approximately $1,000,250,000. This amount puts the highway industry in the select class of billion dollar enterprises.

A goodly portion of this amount is appropriated to maintenance, as those in charge of highway work are fully alive to the fact that even the most scientifically constructed roads must be maintained. No one has yet discovered a road surface that can be put down and then left severely alone. The continual stream of traffic that passes over the well-paved highways of the country inexorably takes its toll, and it requires unremitting attention on the part of those to whom the highways are entrusted to keep them in good condition.

Different Methods Used

Different methods of maintenance are in operation in different sections of the country. States, counties, cities and various other municipal organizations all have roads to maintain and, as was inevitable, they have all followed the same practice. For a number of years, the necessity for constructing new roads and reconstructing old ones to keep pace with the enormous increase in automobile traffic, showed the maintenance problem into the background, but in the last few years most of the states have been making intensive studies of their highway maintenance problems. They have not all reached the same conclusion, but so far as the fundamentals are concerned, they are approaching uniformity.

Subject of Conference

A thorough discussion of state maintenance of highways is on the program of the Annual Convention of the American Road Builders' Association to be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, January 5th to 9th next. Frank T. Sheets, Chief Highway Engineer of Illinois, has been selected as best qualified to discuss this important subject. Mr. Sheets has risen from the ranks in the Illinois Highway Department and knows every phase of highway work. He is one of the younger men in the highway field who have been appointed to positions of great importance. The people of his state have just voted an additional $100,000,000 bond issue for highway construction.

Delegates and guests from all over the country will be present at the Convention of the American Road Builders' Association. Last year, the registration at the Road Show, which the Association conducts as an integral part of its annual meeting, was in excess of 15,000. Every phase of the highway industry was represented, and it is expected that an even greater number will be on hand at the coming Convention and Show. Both the Convention at the Congress Hotel and The Road Show at the Coliseum are open without charge.

REALTORS' GLEE CLUB

TO SING FOR KPO

The San Francisco Real Estate Board's glee club will give an extensive radio program over KPO Monday night. The program will be for an hour, beginning at 9 o'clock with an address by Harry B. Allen, president of the board. It will be under the direction of Eugene Blanchard, director of the club.

At the recent convention of the California Real Estate Association in Pasadena the glee club of the board participated in the opening program of the Express KNX station in Los Angeles.

KGO to Send Out City Yule Party

All California will be permitted to enjoy San Francisco's municipal Christmas party, to be given Christmas Eve (Wednesday night) in Exposition Auditorium, through the broadcasting medium of the General Electric company's station KGO. A leased wire will be used.

The entire program is under the direction of the city government and admittance to the public is free. Everyone in San Francisco is invited. Supervisor J. Emmett Hayden, chairman of the Auditorium committee, and Chester W. Resekrans of the San Francisco Community Service are in charge.

Mr. Shasta—Contract to be awarded for repairing and surfacing ten miles of highway in Sacramento canyon.

Lakeport—Odd Fellows' hall being remodeled and renovated.

Paris Sponsors Cottons

The home dress-maker may be interested to know that some of the best Paris dressmaking houses have been sending to this country delightful models of dressy daytime frocks made of simple American ginghams, chambrays, drawcloths, and novelty cottons.

Sketched is a dainty afternoon frock imported from Paris, and fashioned of Gibrac drawcloth in gray and green, with vest front of pale yellow organic trim with frills of narrow V-l lace. Note that the smart little hat is of the same fabric.

Zane Grey's story "Wanderer of the Wasteland," starring Jack Holt, Paramount's first full length picture to be produced completely in natural colors, by the Technicolor process, comes to the screen of the Richmond Theatre today as the feature attraction.

Zane Grey's story lends itself easily to this process because its background comprises the desert wastes and scenes of the Grand Canyon of America.

It is fine melodrama—simple, effective and always impressive in its rugged plot, characterization and backgrounds. Not a scene is wasted and every episode has a meaning. The central figure exacts great sympathy for his plight, deprived by his conscience of fulfilling his ambitions for success and romance. He faces dangers and suffers several trials in escaping the law and starvation. And in his amazing adventures you are treated to a full-some quota of thrills—some of which leave you gasping—and all of them treating you to continuous suspense.

Other features on the same program include Charles Chaplin in a new edition Keystone comedy entitled, "His Trysting Palooza"; "Kinograms", built like a newspaper.

Thousands Pay Final Homage to Dead S. F. Solon

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 20.—Beginning at 10 o'clock today, the body of Congressman Julius Kahn, who had represented this district at Washington for the past 26 years, rested in state in the rotunda of the city hall, attended by a military guard of honor. Thousands of his friends, former constituents, and men and women prominent in many walks of life, filed past the flag-draped and flower-strewn casket during the day.

Funeral services, which also will have a military background, will begin at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in Temple Emanuel-EI, and will be conducted by Rabbi Louis L. Newman assisted by Rabbi R. R. Rinder. About 50 officers from the Presidio will attend the services in a body. Besides these there will be a special detail of soldiers from the Presidio to act as an escort of honor. Interment, which will be private, will be held in the afternoon at the Home of Peace cemetery.

Delay Filling Kahn Post Seen

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 20.—A special election to name a successor to Congressman Julius Kahn, who died in San Francisco Thursday probably will not be called by Governor Richardson until early in February, it was learned at the capitol today.

Under the State law no provision is made as to the time allowed the governor in which to call an election in such a case. It was stated by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan, and it is probable that Governor Richardson will allow the Congressional post to remain vacant until the short term has expired on March 4.

If a special election should be called within the next month the candidates would run for both the short term and the regular two-year period.

In order to have the seat filled by the time the new term begins it would be necessary to call the election not later than the first week in February, Jordan said.

THE NEW BOOK SHELF AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Thirty-seven new books went into circulation at the Public Library on Saturday afternoon. Of this number fourteen titles are recent fiction.

A recent book much in demand at the library these days is the much talked of Autobiography of Mark Twain. Mr. Clemens wrote the book some years before his death and left instructions that it not be published until he had been dead many years. He called it "writing from the grave", and it gives a new insight into the fine character of one of our most distinguished Americans.

William Allen White has written what is probably the frankest and fairest biography of Woodrow Wilson. Though not of the President's political party Mr. White supported him in all of his major policies so is able to write with a more open mind than either an avowed friend or an open enemy.

The housewife will be interested in the new ideas which she will find in a recent cookbook called "One-piece dinners". The One-piece dinner, it seems, is all put on at once in the same pot, and served, as a rule from the utensil it was cooked in, thus saving time, and fuel and conserving flavor and vitamins.

"The Story of an Independent Newspaper" gives the history of one hundred years of the Springfield, Mass. Republican which was established in 1824 and has had a wonderful record as an independent paper.

Readers interested in the Gypsy tribe will want to see Irving Brown's Gypsy fires in America" which is a narrative of life among the Romanyes of the United States and Canada. And Leland's "The Gypsies" which is a new edition of a standard work dealing with the gypsies of the various countries of the world.

For some time before his death Dr. Emmett Holt, the children's specialty was one of the editors of the Hays Child Department in the "Delineator". The material published

The Literary Spotlight

A Novel of California's New Gold Rush—Hollywood

ONCE there was when Mrs. Hart and Joann Miller responded to the lure of California's mining camps and the drama of "The Nineties"; and now Adela Rogers St. Johns, who knows a great deal about film folk, has responded to the lure of what she calls "California's second gold rush", and has written a novel of Hollywood life that does much more than whisper its tales of scandal and reflect the glitter of its wealth. The novel begins in the January issue of Cosmopolitan. "The Skyrocket" it is called, for "skyrockets" is what she calls the people of Hollywood. "Poor little shooting stars", "children of glory and romance and disaster".

Sharon Kimm was like that. Coming from nowhere she brought to Hollywood only an empty pocket-book, a heritage of tragedy and poverty, and—looks. She offered her talent for sale in "those studios where intrigue and favoritism pull the wires that make the marionettes dance." When jealousy and spite in the person of a successful star got Sharon fired from her fifty dollar part as a bathing girl, she dried her eyes and concluded that all the happiness in the world hadn't yet befallen her, and it did; and with it came love and glory and a great deal else. The course of the skyrocket had begun.

"Can I Trust My Daughter?"

"Too Suspicious," She Replies

THE younger generation and the older general each speaks for itself in two different articles appearing in the January issue of Smart Set. "Can I trust my daughter?" asks a distracted father who, after years of trying to be his daughter's friend and adviser as well as her parent, suddenly finds himself confronted with a girl who is a stranger to him. At eighteen years of age she "pets" and drinks and only answers to remonstrance with a "can't you trust me, father? I know when to stop."

In that department has been issued in book form under the title of "The Happy Baby", and contains practical

"So does the drunkard, none better," comments the father, but at the point when he should stop, he usually does not want to. "We all at us know when to stop, but—why take such desperate chances to 'make out'?" You'd think the anonymous author, the poor youth of these hectic and abnormal days, is playing with the profoundest notions of human experience and something is going to come of it. The other article, "Suspicious Parents" written by a young girl and appearing in the same issue of Smart Set, would seem to indicate that the solution of the problem rests with the older generation and with the parents who have not tried to be friends and advisers. It is a plea for tolerance.

Locke's New Novel, Stirring Tale of London Society Life

THE GREAT PANDOLFO William J. Locke's new novel which begins in the December issue of Harper's Bazaar, is far from being an ordinary one. It combines, in its very style, the graciousness and the subtle charm of its heroine and the dashing bravado of the strange man who is its titular hero. It is a story of London society life and it is an uncommon one. Full of clever dialogue, of monocled gentlemen and bejeweled women it still has escaped the flatness and the artificiality that Michael Arlen and others of the younger English sophisticated might have given it.

Paula Field was a beautiful woman and one who had the divine gift of "suffering most people gladly." She was in every sense of the word a civilized woman, amiable, worldly, and a diplomat, yet a woman "impatient of subtleties." "She had lived her life in the major key of love and death and courage." Victor Pandolfo was a great inventor who had, by the sheer force of his will arisen from the quagmire of obscure childhood in an Italian colony of organ-grinders. His will was no mean thing. In Paula Field, however, he met his first obstacle, yet "a woman whom he proclaimed once and for all on his own plane of personality."

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

In reciprocation of the wonderful cure effected through the medium of Dr. Wong Him's herbs and his thorough knowledge of every human ailment, I desire to state briefly the terrible sufferings experienced by myself for other thirty years, thus guiding anyone who may desire relief from attacks of any nature:

I had been afflicted with cancer and Bright's Disease, also catarrh of the head for a period of over thirty years. Learning of the extraordinary cures resulting from the herb treatments of Dr. Wong Him, I decided to seek relief if possible through this course, being to some extent skeptical, due to failures of other eminent specialists to effect any amount of relief.

A complete treatment of the above herbs have resulted in relieving me entirely of these affliction and my head has been cleared of all traces of catarrh. Pains in back and headaches have ceased and am again able to enjoy perfect health.

The above has been absolutely unsolicited and my only hope is that same may prove of great benefit to all sufferers who may read it.

Gould Lines Again Under One Control

OAKLAND, Dec. 20.—For the first time since the dissolution of the Gould interests, the Western Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande and Missouri Pacific railroads are under single management from the Pacific Coast to St. Louis. The announcement of the passing of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad into the hands of the Missouri Pacific and Western Pacific system, effective at midnight last night, was received today.

J. E. Pycatt, president of the Texas, New Orleans and Mexico railroad, is the new president of the consolidated transcontinental railroad system. Pycatt announced yesterday that no physical changes would be made for the present and no changes in the operative management. He will make an early inspection tour of the entire system.

Plans for the consolidation were approved by the Interstate Commerce commission and at an auction sale held October 29, the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad was sold for slightly less than $18,000,000 to the two railroads. A sum of $10,000,000 will be spent immediately in improving the entire system, according to plans approved by the federal commission.
